

NAME :

Give code to set up a web server that can handle an indefinite number of requests and shuts down when the user presses `ctrl+c`. Web browsers connect to the server via `http://localhost:8888/`. The server maintains a regular file with name `'/tmp/data????'` where `????` are four random digits. For every request made by a browser, one line with the current time of the request is written to file and the user sees in the browser window the content of this file.