Consider the following client/server interaction: the client receives the current time from the server and prints it. The client is the only one who prints something. (Import the `time` module and use `time.ctime()`.)

1. Write the Python code for the server below:

2. Write the Python code for the client below: